"MAKE-UP" OF A MOSLEM BRIDE. We called yesterday on the daughter of a Mohammedan living in this city, (Tripoli.) Though the girl had been married for several days, she had never seen her husband. He only had gone to the Mosone when the cerenony was performed, she taking no part in it. After the ceremony the bride usually stays at her father's nine days, during which time she sits in state, decked in her finest dress and jewels, receiving calls from her friends. Then her joy is at an end. She must so to her husband, take off her fine clothes, and become a perfect slave, subject to the will of her cruel master. The parents of this were very poor. Her mother was dressed in little better than rags, and was at the tangua washing clothes.
All the women of the bride's company had their hair platted full of gold coins; these were heirlooms, and so greatly treasured that a roman would almost starve sooner than part with one. The present given by the family to he bride was an elegant pale-blue brocads the bride was an elegant pale-blue brounds silk, embroidered with gold. The former cost $150. The bridegroom's presents were a sump-tuous lilac silk, heavily embroidered with gold; ear-rings of pearls and gold, bracelets as wide as a finger. During the call she wore the bridegroom's presents. The other dresses were hung spread out on the wall.

We stopped at a house below, according to custom, and sent word we were coming. The bride returned answer she would be most hap-py to salute us. After waiting about twenty utes we went up stairs, for she lived on the minute we went up stairs, for she lived on the second fleor. See had not quite finished her toilet, surrounded by her finery. As we entered she rose and saluted us, and then returned composedly to her dressing. Of all the strange and ghastly sights her face was the most weaderful, as may well be imagined from the way in which it was prepared.

First, bot way was accessed over the vehole.

the way in which it was prepared.

First, hot wax was spread over the whole face, which, when cool, was peeled off. This was done to remove all the hair from her face. Then whiting was rubbed ou till the skin leaked the markly. painted jet black, her lips and a large spot on each check painted brilliant red. On these red spots on her forehead, and at the corners of her mouth gift flowers were pasted. Then over the whole face powdered snour lead been enapped, which made it sparkle as with "dia-mond dust." She wore pearl ear-rings, and around her neck was a string of large amber beads, three strings of roped pearls and a co-rious necklace, which we were privately told was borrowed for the occasion. It was made was corrowed for the occasion. It was made of gold five-pound pieces, overlapping each other like scales. The usual head-dress was covered with real and artificial flowers. The finishing touch was put on in the shape of a piece of black wax, heated over the canoou till very hot, made round and flat, and then stuck between the eyes.—Dv. Jessup's "Syrias Home Life."

THE ABLE-BODIED STYLE OF DYING IN OPERA.

Italian opera is the extremest product of modern civilization. It is not the highest, God forbid! but the production of it, the support, and above all, the enjoyment of it, shows that those by whom it is produced, supported and enjoyed, have reached a condition of social evervescence beyond which no people have yet bleemed or burgeoned-perhaps beyond which there is hope of fruit of the socially exquisit sort. It is the most arbitrary, conventional and extravagant form which art has takes, for the pleasure of those whose pleasures must be refined luxuries. And this is the most refined and yet one of the most earthly of luxuries-one which is partly sensual, partly emo-tional, and not at all intellectual, and of which the height of the enjoyment is in direct proportion only to cultivated, sensuous refinement and emotional susceptibility. Regarded in the light of reason, Italian opera is monatrous and even ridiculous. At best, it exists at the very periphery of rational coherence, a hair's breadth beyond which sends us whiri-ing in fragmentary fashion into the abysa of niathomable nonsense. A reasonable creature, taken in stark un. preparation and set down in an opera-house while the business of a high-strung scene was going on—a tenor stabbed to death, and dying with such effusion of musical noise as would tax the capacity of an organ bellows; a love-lorn prima dona raving about the stage in the very ecstacy of melodious hystorics; a dozen or two of lookers-on, who offer the man no aid and the lady no hartshorn, but who simply "stand around" and sing, while before them two or three score musicians give themselves up to fiddling, and tooting, and blowing, and thumping, among whom, perched high, a man beats the air with a little stick; and yet more wonderful of all, a vast assemblage, dressed on purpose, in their very best clothes, look down upon the scene with breathless interest, and when the noise stops-for noise it simply is, not one distinguishable word being heard by any creature present—break forth into such extravagant and tumultuous expressions of delight as he never can have heard before, (for it is remarkable that no such outbursting and manifestly soul-relieving applause as greets the most admired passages in a favorite opera is elicited by any other act done in earnest or performed in make-believe by any human creature on any other occasion or in any other place whatever)—the reasonable being having this spectacle set before his unprepared, untutored eyes—would he not say that these people, prima donna, tenor, chorus, fiddlers and fiddlecs were mad—all lunation together!-Galaxy. AN ANECDOTE OF VERDI. When Verdi was putting the last touches to 'Il Trovatore'' he was visited in his study by a privileged friend. That friend was one of the ablest of living musicians and critics. He was permitted to look at the score, and ram over the "Anvil Chorus" on the pianoforte. "What do you think of that!" said the master. "Trash!" said the connoisseur. Veril rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this, and this," he went on. "Rubbish!" said the other, rolling a cigarette. The compour rase and embraced him with a burst of joy. "What do you mean," cried the critic. "My dear friend," replied Verdi, "I have been making a popular opera. In it I resolved to please every-body expent the purists, the great indiges the body except the purists, the great judges, the classicists, like you. Ifad I pleased you, I should have pleased no one else. What you say assures me of success. In three months 'Il Trovatore' will be sung, and roared, and whistled, and barrel-organed all over Italy." RESTRICTED DIET IN DISEASE. Dr. Max Von Pettenkofer disputes the rule laid down by so many physiologiets, that, so long as the body is able to perform its functions, even though suffering from hunger, to take more food is superfluous. Bischoff and Voitt fully demonstrated, by their experiments on nutrition, that the result of a nourishment on intrinon, that the result of a notifishment so restricted is an actual state of want, a continual famine, a condition incompatible, is the long run, with the normal conditions of life. The body, says Pettenkofer, has need of a certain well being—of a small excess of nourishment, he areas to result and ment-in order to preserve its strength and vigor, and what just prevent's death from hun-

ARTHFICIAL BIRDS NESTS IN PARIS. On: of the methods adopted by the authorities of Paris for the encouragement of birds in the parks of that city is the manufacture and placing of artificial nests so cunningly constructed that each variety of bird will recogstructed that each variety of first will recog-nize its home at once, and suppose it to be the vacated mansion of a bird family just moved out. These mests are made by women, and L'Illustration says "they make them for the thievish and quarrelsome sparrow," the tit-Ity c, the warbier, the kingdisher, the chaf-finch, cuckoo, blackbird, magpie and others. Three thousand of these nests have been put up, the plan having been suggested by a pro-fersor of the Jardin des Plantes,

It is our prerogative to command ourselves, not events; not content with the inevitable, while we neglect the possible. The moral energy we spend in superfluous efforts we shall want for actions that are really profitable. Evils are more to be dreaded from the suddemess of their approach than from the greatness of their duration, and they will be the more insufferable in proportion as they find us unprepared.
